

GERMAN STUDIES, MINOR

SLU's German studies minor is interdisciplinary in its approach to developing linguistic and cultural proficiency. It requires six courses in German language, literature and culture, preparing students for immersion and research in German. Furthermore, students develop intercultural competencies for global careers and international and domestic opportunities through the minor in German studies at Saint Louis University.

A German studies minor complements other fields such as medicine, health sciences, engineering, sciences, education, international business and international studies, and many humanities majors, such as history, political science, library science, philosophy and theology.

Being competent in more than one language makes students highly competitive in the job market and in the workplace, but also develops sensitivity to different customs and practices. With the help of SLU's dedicated and experienced German faculty, German studies minors at SLU participate in vigorous and personalized learning. They refine their language skills, develop intercultural competencies, explore the German cultural legacy, and gain familiarity with German within professional and research contexts.

Program Highlights

- SLU's intimate and vibrant German studies program highlights the crucial role of German-speaking countries in the development of Western civilization, modern-day Europe and our global world. Students enjoy a rich and varied curriculum that draws from Germany's centuries-long contributions to literature, architecture, painting, sculpture, music, philosophy, theology economy and businesses, and the sciences.
- Saint Louis University offers German studies minors opportunities for summer, semester and yearlong study abroad programs that count toward degree options, especially through the department's affiliation agreements with the University of Heidelberg and its U.S. counterpart Heidelberg University in Tiffin, Ohio; the University of Frankfurt; and the University of Stuttgart.
- SLU's German program places a strong emphasis on language proficiency, intercultural competence, and knowledge of both the earlier and modern times. For example, students choose from courses including "Communicating in Spoken German: Contemporary Issues", "German for Professional Use," "Wolfram von Eschenbach's Parzival: Gender, Race, and Otherness," or "German Cinema."

Careers

A minor in German studies can prepare students for a number of rewarding careers. Opportunities are rich in fields such as comparative literature, performing arts, cinema, engineering, politics, sports, fashion and industry. Hundreds of American companies operate in Germany and vice versa. Students might pursue a career as a(n):

- International business representative
- Scientific researcher
- International lawyer
- Foreign service officer
- Social service employee
- Teacher/professor

- Medical doctor
- Interpreter/translator
- Museum curator

Requirements

A German Studies minor requires 18 credit hours, regardless of whether a student starts at GR 1010 Communicating in German I (3 cr) or later.

Code	Title	Credits
Required courses
GR 3010	Communicating in Written German: The German Media [†]	3
GR 3020	Communicating in Spoken German: Contemporary Issues [†]	3
Elective courses		12
Select 12 credits of electives from the below OR other language, literature, or culture courses in the German program.
GR 1010	Communicating in German I
GR 1020	Communicating in German II
GR 2010	Intermediate German: Language & Culture
GR 3210	German Cultural History
GR 3300	Berlin
GR 3310	Modern German Prose and Film
GR 3320	German Cinema
GR 3330	German Identity
GR 3510	Wolfram von Eschenbach's Parzival: Gender, Race, and Otherness
GR 3700	History of German Language
GR 4010	Fluency in German
GR 4250	German for Professional Use
GR 4750	The German Press: Creating a Foreign Language Newspaper
Total Credits		18

† In the event that an incoming student is placed above GR 3010 or 3020, s/he would take additional 3000 or 4000-level courses to meet the 18-credit requirement.

Continuation Standards

All German Studies minor courses must be completed with a grade of C or higher in order to count for the minor and for the student to continue in the minor. If a student earns a grade of C- or lower in a course, the student may retake the course or take an additional course in the minor in which the grade earned is a C or higher.

Contact Us

For additional information about this program, please contact languages@slu.edu or call 314-977-2617.