SERV 3000 - Ignatian Leadership and Service

0 or 3 Credits

SERV 3000 is a service-learning course that explores Ignatian principles and practices that form integral leaders who work toward magis for all individuals and communities. While derived from the Spiritual Exercises, the formation of an Ignatian leader must include the integration of many diverse experiences, which can include a more formal study of leadership. Ignatian leadership embraces the notion that we are all leaders in diverse ways according to our capacities. To help discern, direct, and develop those capacities, an overarching question will guide the class: "How can Ignatian leadership help form integral leaders with the theory and the praxis to work together toward the greater good of individuals and communities by integrating the values, knowledge, and skills of their respective areas of study?" REQUIRED: enrollment in both a SERV 3000 lecture (LEC) and any SERV 3000 "internship" (INT), requiring 25 hours of service at an approved service site.

Prerequisite(s): CORE 1500* ; Minimum Earned Credits of 60; CORE 1000

* Concurrent enrollment allowed.

SERV 4960 - Capstone: Ignatian Vocation and Service

3 Credits

The primary goal of this course is the discerned integration of your SLU education [Core + Minor(s) + Major(s)] as you prepare to "go forth" as servant-leaders called with a vocation, equipped with an education, and honed with professional skills to assist in bringing integral human development to all individuals and communities. While not required, a Spiritual Exercises retreat is strongly recommended as a pivot point that helps you discern your educational goals beyond SLU as you, "Go forth and set the world on fire." (Offered in Spring)
